

F60.2 Dissocial personality disorder

- A. The general criteria for personality disorder (F60) must be met.
- B. At least three of the following must be present:
1. callous unconcern for the feelings of others;
  2. gross and persistent attitude of irresponsibility and disregard for social norms, rules, and obligations;
  3. incapacity to maintain enduring relationships, though with no difficulty in establishing them;
  4. very low tolerance to frustration and a low threshold for discharge of aggression, including violence;
  5. incapacity to experience guilt, or to profit from adverse experience, particularly punishment;
  6. marked proneness to blame others, or to offer plausible rationalizations for the behaviour that has brought the individual into conflict with society.

Comments

Persistent irritability and the presence of conduct disorder during childhood and adolescence complete the clinical picture but are not required for the diagnosis.

It is suggested that sub-criteria should be developed to define behaviour patterns specific to different cultural settings concerning social norms, rules, and obligations where needed (such as examples of irresponsibility and disregard of social norms).

The diagnosis of personality disorder for research purposes requires the identification of a subtype. (More than one subtype can be coded if there is compelling evidence that the individual meets multiple sets of criteria.)
